

Oneview Announces Appointment of Dr. Oran Rigby as Executive Medical Director for ANZ

Dr. Louise Messara transitioning away from full-time role to return to clinical practice

February 27, 2017: Oneview Healthcare PLC (“Oneview”) (ASX:ONE), the Australian-listed Irish healthcare company, announced the appointment of Dr. Oran Rigby as Executive Medical Director today. The appointment follows the decision by Dr. Louise Messara to transition back to clinical practice. Whilst Louise will be stepping down as CEO, she will maintain an active involvement with Oneview as both a consultant and advisory board member.

Dr. Rigby is a Churchill scholar, with Australian and European postgraduate qualifications in surgery, aeromedicine, tropical medicine and international health, and is one of Australia's pre-eminent trauma and intensive care specialists. His Churchill fellowship was awarded to support research into innovative applications for robotics, drones and telemedicine in trauma critical care. Until recently, he held the position of state medical director for NSW & the Sydney metropolitan Trauma system with ITIM. As a visiting scholar at Harvard University, with the multi-faculty Harvard Humanitarian Initiative, he has been invited to address several forums of international experts. Dr. Rigby has served as the Chair of Intensive Care Services for Ramsay Healthcare at the Noosa Hospital and is an Associate Professor in Robotics & Autonomous systems with Queensland University of Technology (QUT).

“Whilst we are saddened to be losing Louise in a full-time capacity, we are delighted she will remain an active part of the Oneview family. We are thrilled to be adding Oran to our leadership team. Oran's passion for healthcare and innovation is an excellent match for our culture and I have no doubt he will bring fresh perspective to both our organisation and our product development”, commented James Fitter, CEO of Oneview.
