- Rebecca McGrath to succeed Neil Hamilton as Chairman following 24 May 2017 Annual General Meeting (AGM)
- Non-Executive Director Paul Dowd to join Mr Hamilton in retiring from the Board
- Tonianne Dwyer, Non-Executive Director and former corporate finance adviser and funds manager, appointed to the Board effective 22 March 2017
- Peter Tomsett, Non-Executive Director and former CEO of a global mining company, appointed to the Board effective 22 March 2017

OZ Minerals today announces changes to its Board of Directors as part of a board renewal program initiated two years ago.

Current Non-Executive Director, Rebecca McGrath, will succeed Neil Hamilton as Chairman. Neil has decided he will retire from the Board at the AGM. Non-Executive Director, Paul Dowd, will also step down at the AGM.

Two new Directors have today been appointed to the Board. They are Tonianne Dwyer, an experienced company director and former corporate finance advisor and funds manager, and Peter Tomsett, experienced company director and former President and Chief Executive Officer of gold mining company, Placer Dome Inc. They will join the Board as Non-Executive Directors from 22 March 2017.

Mr Hamilton said, "Considerable change has occurred in the past 30 months under Chief Executive Officer, Andrew Cole, culminating in the significant mine life extension for Prominent Hill and the development of the Carrapateena project. It is the right point for both me, and the company, that we make this change. OZ Minerals is now well positioned for the next chapter of its life and will benefit from a renewed Board supporting Andrew and the team as they deliver the growth strategy."

Ms McGrath held senior executive roles for global resources companies during her 20-year management career before joining the OZ Minerals Board in 2010. She is the Chairman of Investa Office Management Holdings and a Non-Executive Director of both Incitec Pivot and Goodman Group.

"This is an exciting time to be stepping into the Chair at OZ Minerals," said Ms McGrath.

"Along with Prominent Hill and Carrapateena there is a growing pipeline of exploration opportunities in place, including West Musgrave currently in study phase. The resources sector though is not immune from the disruption affecting many businesses. As a Board, maximising the opportunities and meeting the challenges in front of us will require both rigour and boldness."

Ms McGrath said the appointment of Ms Dwyer and Mr Tomsett would bring financial and international mining expertise along with new perspectives to the Board.

She thanked Mr Hamilton and Mr Dowd for their contributions to the Board over seven and eight years respectively.
