RCR Awarded $60M Greenough River Solar Farm 30MWac Expansion Project

Diversified engineering and infrastructure company RCR Tomlinson Ltd (ASX: RCR), is pleased to announce that it has been awarded an Engineering, Procurement and Construction (“EPC”) contract, valued at approximately $60 million, by Synergy for a 30MWac expansion of the Greenough River Solar Farm in Western Australia.

RCR’s scope of works for the project includes engineering, procurement, construction and commissioning of the expanded Solar Farm, with an immediate project start and targeted completion in Q2, 2019.

RCR Managing Director & CEO, Dr Paul Dalglish said “We are very pleased to have been selected to deliver this solar expansion project for Greenough River”.

“The award of this project enables us to diversify our traditional offerings in Western Australia and also expands on our ever-increasing footprint of solar projects across Australia”.

“We are seeing increased activity in the renewable energy market in Western Australia and are well placed to service this from our position as a market leader,” said Dr Dalglish.
