Approved Sunscreen

The Board of Advance NanoTek Limited are pleased to announce that our first end product, fully developed by ANO, has been approved by the Therapeutic Goods Administration ("TGA") today.

ZinXation, our all natural active ingredient SPF50+ zinc based sunscreen will be available for sale in approximately 3 months in Australia and New Zealand to coincide with the southern summer season.

Approvals are currently being obtained for the US, Canada, Europe and Asian markets to facilitate distribution into these markets.

The product will be available through an e-commerce brand owner and will be offered to other brand owners under the same terms and conditions. A number of international agreements are already being considered by the Board.

We are currently developing further products through our chemist network and hope to expand the range of ZinXation products later this year. All product formulations will be licenced through our distributors to end customers to ensure increased use of our active ZinClear ingredient range.
