Lundin Norway ASO awards an EPCI contract to Rosenberg WorleyParsons

Rosenberg WorleyParsons has been awarded an engineering, procurement, construction and installation contract ("EPCI") by Lundin Norway ASO in the Norwegian Continental Shelf. The services include planning, engineering, prefabrication, offshore installation and commissioning support. The objective of the modification is to prepare Lundin's Edvard Grieg platform to receive and process oil and gas from nearby offshore fields.

The project starts immediately and has a duration of two and a half years. The services will be executed from WorleyParsons Rosenberg in Stavanger.

"WorleyParsons is proud to be selected to execute this important brownfield modification project for Lundin Norway", says Andrew Wood, Chief Executive Officer of WorleyParsons.
