BRISBANE BRONOS LIMITED UPDATE ON IMPLICATIONS OF CORONAVIRUS (COVID-19)

The Board of Brisbane Broncos Limited (BBL) provide the following update regarding the complex and evolving situation with respect to the impact of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) on the National Rugby League (NRL) competition.

Given these exceptional circumstances and the uncertainty surrounding the impact of the COVID-19 virus both in Australia and globally, the NRL who will be guided by experts and government, are continuously assessing the situation. They will make appropriate determinations as required regarding the course of action to be taken. All options and possible scenarios are being reviewed daily given the fluidity of these circumstances. The current position is that round two of the NRL competition will proceed at empty stadiums with no access to the general public. However, this will be continuously monitored and may change subject to ongoing developments.

It is anticipated that additional information will be provided by the NRL with respect to the future of the competition in due course as the situation develops. The Brisbane Broncos will be required to comply with any directions issued by government and the NRL. BBL will notify the market when information becomes available that will provide further clarity regarding this matter.

Yours sincerely

Louise Lanigan Company Secretary

Brisbane Broncos Limited
