ELMO launches new module: COVIDsecure
Enables businesses to track employees' vaccination and test status

Key Highlights

- ELMO launches COVIDsecure, a new module available for customers
- The COVIDsecure module enables businesses to record, monitor and report on their employees COVID vaccination and test status
- Broadens ELMO's convergent solution and strengthens customer offering

Sydney, Australia 6 September 2021: ELMO Software Limited ('ELMO') today announces the launch of a new module, COVIDsecure.

Developed in-house, COVIDsecure enables employers to automate record keeping of COVID testing and the vaccination status of their workforce. The module will act as the technology that supports businesses to reopen safely post-lockdown.

COVIDsecure provides employers with the ability to capture employees' vaccination and test status for the entire or targeted areas of their business such as location, department or even role.

Employers can also configure periodic expiry alerts so they can be notified when an employee is due to update their vaccine or test status. The alert functionality is particularly useful for workers required by government regulation to submit for testing at regular intervals.

The new module makes it easy for employees to securely submit records of their COVID vaccination or test results in a single platform.

ELMO CEO and Co-founder Danny Lessem says, "Many businesses have announced they will be mandating vaccinations among their workforce, ELMO's COVIDsecure module makes it easier to keep records of the vaccination and testing status of that workforce, with employee consent.

"ELMO's COVIDsecure module gives employers a tool to help keep their employees and the community safe. The new module increases the breadth of our solution, further differentiates ELMO's value proposition and provides new revenue opportunities."
