- Anderson Creek Gold Project – Idaho, USA
- The Elko Coking Coal Project – British Columbia, Canada

Details of each of the projects are outlined in the following sections.

Anderson Creek Gold Project

The Anderson Creek Gold Project is the Company's first self-originated gold project in the USA. The Anderson Creek Gold Project covers 496 acres of ground in a highly prospective gold bearing region of the Gibbonsville Mining District in northern Lemhi County, Idaho.

Anderson Creek was chosen as a potential high value asset due to geology, historical gold production, mineralogy and historical grades as well as access to existing infrastructure and ability to expand the claim area and project footprint. Historical grades from Diane 1 vein returned gold values of up to 160g/t.

Anderson Creek Project Area historic samples greater than 0.5 g/t

The Company has completed in-field geological surveys and sample collection. Based on the nature of the samples and their proximity to several large known gold bearing quartz veins, the Company is seeking to advance its understanding of the project area, including targeting three areas known as:

- D1 and D2 quartz veins,
- Additional 9 veins orientated parallel to the D1 & D2 veins, and
- Breccia Zone to the north of the project area.

Gold and Copper Projects

As the Company has built technical and commercial expertise in the USA based team, that expertise has been used to identify and prioritise gold project opportunities along with other potential gold and copper projects in North America. The Company considers copper having a positive long term outlook due to its enabling role in an electrified economy.

The Elko Coking Coal Project

The Company has always held the view that the Elko Project is a substantial asset for the Company containing 303.1Mt of JORC 2012 compliant resources. Contained within 9 seams, the resources are predominately contained in the Measured and Indicated Category and represent 210.8Mt or 70% of the total resources.

Measured	JORC 2012 In-Situ Resources (Mt)			Total
	Indicated	Inferred
117.6	93.2	92.3		303.1

Across the 9 seams, the Elko Project contains a range of coking coal properties, making it a project capable of delivering a range of products to meet the demands of the global seaborne market.

The Company has consistently ensured investment was directed into the Elko and has continuously reviewed all options for development.

With the return of higher pricing across all metallurgical coal categories, the Company continues to seek out collaborative partners to realise the value of such a high quality and limited resource. Elko has always been considered a medium to long term project. Looking beyond short term coking coal price fluctuations, the consensus forecast for Hard Coking Coal price supports the view that coking coal prices will be sustained in the long term, hence underpinning the Company's investment thesis that the Elko Coking Project holds substantial value for shareholders.
