Centrex Metals Limited (ASX:CXM) (the Company) is pleased to announce a number of exciting developments in relation to its wider marketing and re-branding initiatives.

The Company has formally changed the name of its 100% owned subsidiary Centrex Phosphate Pty Ltd (ACN 132 019 357) to Agriflex Pty Ltd.

The Agriflex name and brand will be the market-facing brand behind its highly anticipated Ardmore Phosphate Rock Project (refer Figure 1).

In addition to this change, Centrex will also seek shareholder approval at its upcoming AGM for the publicly listed holding company to remove the word 'Metals' from its name and become Centrex Limited. The name change will support its formal transition from a traditional exploration and mining company to a contemporary resource company.

The Company will set out the required special resolution to change its name in the Notice of AGM to be distributed to shareholders in the coming weeks.

Centrex Managing Director Robert Mencil said that the delivery of mining at Ardmore and the establishment of Agriflex Pty Ltd are milestone developments in achieving the company's refocused mission of being a modern resource company at the forefront of innovative and sustainable solutions to meet Australia, and ultimately the world's, resource needs.

This ASX announcement has been approved and authorised for release by the Board of the Company.
