Mr Hamish McLennan, Magellan's Chairman, said:

"Whilst it has been a difficult year for the business, we delivered a number of capital management initiatives that we believe are consistent with our aim to deliver capital efficiency, pay solid dividends and generate attractive returns to shareholders. Magellan is highly focused on its core funds management business, and we look forward to the next chapter of the company's growth under new CEO and Managing Director, Mr David George."

Mr David George, CEO and Managing Director, said

"Magellan has faced a number of significant challenges in FY22 which have impacted our financial results for the period. Whilst the material client outflows experienced in the second half of the year will impact FY23, we are very positive on the business moving forward."

"Despite recent challenges, Magellan's goal of protecting and growing our clients' wealth remains undiminished. The current investment landscape is a volatile and difficult one, that should reward outstanding fundamental company research and active management of portfolios, qualities that are trademarks of Magellan products. The team is energised and highly focused on delivering consistent and improved investment returns and, in doing so, restoring stability, confidence and shareholder value."

"Magellan remains an asset manager of scale, with considerable underlying financial strength and great potential. The strength of Magellan's balance sheet provides us with significant headroom to invest in our business to deliver for our clients and position ourselves for future growth. I look forward to sharing my thoughts with shareholders in October."
