Q1-FY23: Continuing the Path to Cash Flow Positive

“As we start our new fiscal year, macroeconomic conditions have significantly tightened and Tinybeans is remaining focused on achieving our top priority for the year: becoming cash flow positive in the next 12 months. We are pleased to report that as we close up our first quarter, we are on track to achieve our cash flow goals by growing our subscription revenues and offsetting our declining ad revenues due to the economic climate with sound expense management.

Q1 achieved revenues of US$2.17M, down 15% pcp (prior corresponding period), with a cashburn of US$1.2M*, and yielding a cash balance of over US$3M as of September 30. We are forecasting Q2’s cashburn to reduce significantly to between US$400k and US$700k.

Our subscription business is showing strong growth, with paid subscriptions of US$517K, up 130% pcp and monthly recurring revenues (MRR) of US$172k, up more than double on 12 months prior. The quarter finished with 53k paying subscribers and a renewal rate of over 90%. We are committed to driving accelerated results through FY23, launching new services in 2023 calendar year, and augmenting our results with affiliate revenue.

Advertising revenues are challenged by the tightening global economy, reporting revenues of US$1.56M, down 31% pcp. We remain focused on delivering value to our brand clients and driving their success on our platforms. Given the conditions, remaining flat in advertising revenues in FY23 would be a positive outcome.

Our audience remained largely flat through the quarter, with MAU hitting just under 3M.

Overall costs are reduced 20% on previous quarters, now operating at around US$1M per month.

We have made further changes to the leadership team and in our product, engineering and growth teams, including recruiting Kath Hamilton, our new Chief Product & Technology Officer.

Tinybeans is more relevant than ever to parents everywhere. According to the Tinybeans Insights Lab, 77% of families say that the pandemic gave them newfound appreciation of their kids. Families are focused on what really matters—spending time together. Tinybeans serves as a trusted member of the family, inspiring parents to create meaningful memories with their kids and privately and safely sharing those memories.

Every month, millions of families count on Tinybeans to help them raise amazing kids.”
