Market Review and Outlook

The global high yield bond market finished the month of September in negative territory despite resilient economic data. Yields rose throughout fixed income during the month, primarily driven by a surge in 10-year U.S. Treasury yields as investors grappled with the Federal Reserve's hawkish persistence and the view that interest rates could be higher for longer. This put pressure on high yield bond spreads, which widened in the latter half of September. The yield on U.S. 10-Year Treasuries ended the month at 4.59%—a level not seen since 2007—rising 50 basis points since the end of August and 71 basis points since the end of last year. Yields on 10-year U.K. Gilts and German Bunds also rose over the month. Although default rates have moved up from last year's lows, they are still well below the long-term averages. While high yield aggregate fundamentals of EBITDA growth, free cash flow, interest coverage and leverage remain in somewhat favorable ranges, we are seeing that fundamentals have weakened in certain sectors with some issuers seeing rising idiosyncratic credit risk. That said, pricing in the high yield market largely already reflects the challenges these issuers and sectors are facing.

While the default rate has risen off the lows reached last year, we expect default rates in 2024 to remain in a range that are around the long-term average. This outlook is based on our bottom-up assessment of issuers, and driven by the higher-quality ratings mix in high yield (56% of issuers with credit ratings of BB), less aggressive new issuance, fewer near-term maturities, as well as an energy sector that is far healthier than in the past few cycles. As for EM high yield corporates, the overall default rate started this year in the mid-teens due to non-payment by Russian and Ukrainian issuers, and due to the elevated defaults in the China property sector. Excluding those specific areas, we expect the EM high yield corporate default rate to be relatively benign at around 3.5% in 2023, as EM corporates have entered this period with reasonable liquidity on average.

In our view, global high yield valuations and yields are compensating investors for the relatively benign default outlook. The lagged effects of monetary tightening, higher current interest rates and shifts in consumer behavior are likely to keep pushing inflation toward central banks' target ranges. However, higher interest rates could put more pressure on the consumer and global economic growth. As credit dispersion has been on the rise, our analysts remain keenly focused on the specific fundamentals of individual issuers in their coverage, assessing the base and downside cases in the event of a soft-landing or recession. Relatively healthy consumer and business balance sheets and nominal GDP growth should continue to provide support for most issuers' fundamentals, in our view.

1. Investors should review the "Risk Factors" set out in Section 8 of NBI's product disclosure statement dated 21 January 2020 ("2020 PDS"). Section 3.3.1 of the 2020 PDS sets out the Manager's views in relation the interest rate environment and impact on distributions.
2. Performance is calculated net of management costs, which includes the Responsible Entity fee, the Management fee, the Administration fee, along with custodian, audit and legal fees and other transactional and operational costs. Investors should review the PDS for full details of NBI, including, in particular, the "Fees and Other Costs" section of the PDS.
3. Annualised Performance since 26 September 2018 to latest month end.
4. Total Return is calculated based on the pre-distribution month end NTA and assumes all distributions are reinvested.
5. Credit quality ratings are based on the Bank of America ("BoFA") Merrill Lynch Master High Yield Index composite ratings. The BoFA Merrill Lynch composite ratings are updated once a month on the last calendar day of the month based on information available up to and including the third business day prior to the last business day of the month. The BoFA Merrill Lynch composite rating algorithm is based on an average of the ratings of three agencies (to the extent rated). Generally the composite is based on an average of Moody's, S&P and Fitch. For holdings that are unrated by the BoFA Merrill Lynch Index composite, credit quality ratings are based on S&P's rating. Holdings that are unrated by S&P may be assigned an equivalent rating by the investment manager. No NRSO has been involved with the calculation of credit quality and the ratings of underlying portfolio holdings should not be viewed as a rating of the portfolio itself. Portfolio holdings, underlying ratings of holdings and credit quality composition may change materially over time.
6. The most recent distribution amount has been announced, and will be paid in the following month. For summary purposes monthly distribution figures have been rounded to 3 decimal places and total financial year distribution figures have been rounded to 2 decimal places. Actual distribution figures can be found on the ASX website. Certain monthly distributions include a return of capital. Please refer to your monthly distribution statement and AMMA statement for further detail.
7. Yield to Maturity — The total annualised return anticipated on a bond if it is held until the end of its lifetime. Yield to maturity is considered a long-term bond yield, but is expressed as an annual rate.
8. Yield to Worst — The lowest potential annualised total return that can be received on a bond without the issuer defaulting. This can be different from the yield to maturity because it assumes that the issuer will exercise any option it has to "call" the security at the earliest opportunity (to redeem and repay the principal value to an investor early).
