INCEPTION: 2 NOVEMBER 2020

Differences in performance between the Munro Global Growth Fund and MAET (ASX quoted Fund) relate to their respective inception dates, the buy/sell spread of the iNAV for MAET.ASX, the timing difference between the issuing of units during the day on the ASX for MAET and the purchase of units in the Munro Global Growth Fund at the end of the day. This may result in reporting small differences in performance.

MONTHLY SUMMARY

The Munro Global Growth Fund returned -2.5% for July. Long equities detracted from performance, currency contributed to performance, whilst hedging and short equity had a negligible impact. Global equity markets, in particular US indices, began July with a rotation away from high performing sectors into sectors that are perceived to be bigger beneficiaries of a Trump Presidency. However this was short-lived, and the month ended with a more traditional 'risk-off' narrative driven by weakening economic data. During the Q2 reporting season, companies that reported strong fundamental results saw little reward in their share prices. Key contributors to performance for the month included CRH, following increasing demand for US infrastructure construction, Digital Enterprise position ServiceNow, delivered a strong earnings report with success in monetising generative AI products, and Liberty Media (F1) which benefited from the early July rotation. Key detractors from performance for the month included SK Hynix, Nvidia and Microsoft. SK Hynix and Nvidia were impacted by heightened political uncertainty and further profit-taking among companies that have performed well year-to-date. The fund remains 54% hedged back to AUD.
