CEO securities sale

San Francisco area-based Life360, Inc. (Life360 or the Company) (Nasdaq: LIF) (ASX: 360) Co-founder and Chief Executive Officer, Chris Hulls, has executed a partial disposition of his holdings amounting to 863,903 shares, or 1.2% of total outstanding shares in the Company, pursuant to Rule 144 of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended. Following the disposition, Mr. Hulls will continue to beneficially own approximately 3.8% of the total outstanding shares in the Company.

Mr. Hulls said: "I have previously indicated my desire to diversify my financial holdings - as a founder, I have been with the Company for 17 years and I have a significant majority of my wealth associated with Life360 - and these transactions reflect that plan. I have recently returned from an extended break more excited than ever about the opportunities ahead for Life360, and with a renewed enthusiasm to lead the next chapter in the Company's vision."

"At the same time I decided to activate my planned diversification, and these transactions will enable me to secure my family's future as well as creating a foundation to undertake philanthropic projects in my local community. I am donating over a third of my securities immediately to a private foundation and donor advised fund. I will still have close to 75% of my net worth in Life360 equity and have committed to not undertake certain additional sales in the next 12 months - this includes terminating the Rule 10b5-1 plan that I had set up and was disclosed in our most recent Form 10-Q."
