Market commentary

The Australian share market ended April in positive territory, defying extreme intra-month volatility triggered by escalating global trade tensions. Early in the month, US President Trump announced a sweeping package of aggressive tariffs on a range of trading partners – both strategic allies and rivals – sparking fears of a synchronised global slowdown and sending global markets tumbling. After falling as much as -7.5% early in the month, the S&P/ASX 200 Accumulation Index rebounded strongly following the mid-April announcement of a 90-day pause on further tariff escalation, ultimately finishing the month up +3.6%.

We will be discussing the implications of these global trade tensions for Australia's economy and share market – and our broader outlook – at our shareholder information meetings starting next week in various capital cities.
