Jervois appoints Mr. Mike Romaniuk as Project Director – Idaho Cobalt Operations

Highlights:

- Former Xstrata plc executive, Mr. Mike Romaniuk, has joined Jervois Global Limited ("Jervois") in the initial consulting role of Project Director – Idaho Cobalt Operations ("ICO"), based in North America.
- Mr. Romaniuk led Xstrata plc's Sudbury Integrated Nickel Operations which comprises several vertically integrated sites across the basin in Ontario, Canada including mines, a mill and a smelter.
- Mr. Romaniuk will transition owners' construction management responsibilities from Mr. Russell Bradford, whom has been fulfilling the role to date out of Perth, Western Australia. Due to ongoing Covid-19 mobility restrictions, Mr. Bradford will continue to provide remote support from Australia during project implementation.

Jervois Global Limited ("Jervois" or the "Company") (ASX: JRV) (TSX-V: JRV) (OTC: JRVMF) is pleased to announce Mr. Mike Romaniuk has joined as Project Director – Idaho Cobalt Operations ("ICO"), based in North America.

Mr. Romaniuk is a project executive with more than 30 years of experience, of which 25 years were with Xstrata plc ("Xstrata") and its predecessor, Falconbridge Limited ("Falconbridge").

As Vice President – Sudbury Operations, Mr. Romaniuk ran the Sudbury Integrated Nickel Operations division for Xstrata (now Glencore plc), which comprised several integrated Sudbury mines (including all Company mines in the Sudbury nickel basin; today Fraser and Nickel Rim South), together with the Montcalm mine in Timmins, the Strathcona milling complex and the Sudbury nickel-copper-cobalt smelter. Mr. Romaniuk was responsible for managing 2,500 direct employees and contractors, and all Xstrata capital projects in the basin.

Specifically, Mr. Romaniuk was Project Director – Nickel Rim South, a C$925 million underground mine on the north-east edge of the Sudbury basin, completed ahead of schedule and under budget in 2010 by Xstrata following its 2006 acquisition of Falconbridge. Prior to his role leading the Sudbury Integrated Nickel Operations for Xstrata, Mr. Romaniuk was Commissioning Manager at the Raglan Operations also owned by Falconbridge in Nunavik province, in the north part of Quebec, Canada.

Other roles Mr. Romaniuk held at Xstrata and Falconbridge was Project Director at each of the Koniambo ferronickel construction in New Caledonia, the Perseverance zinc mine and mill in Quebec, and the Altonorte copper smelter expansion in Chile.

Since leaving Xstrata, Mr. Romaniuk held a variety of Canadian based roles including President and Chief Executive Officer of Rail-Veyor Technologies, a bulk material haulage solutions company; Vice President Operations for Fortune Minerals; Director, Discipline Lead and Project Manager for Eastern Canada at Stantec Inc; and Vice President Projects at Rockcliff Metals Corp.

Mr. Romaniuk, P.Eng holds degrees in Geological Engineering – Mineral Processing, from the University of Toronto, and Mine Geology from Laurentian University in Sudbury, both in Ontario Canada.

Mr. Romaniuk will work closely with Mr. Matthew Lengerich (Executive General Manager – Mining / Acting General Manager – ICO) and the current Project Director – ICO, Mr. Russell Bradford, to ensure successful execution of the remainder of mine and mill construction and successful transition of the Idaho site into commercial operation.
