Settlement of US and Australian Legal Case

Melbourne, Australia - Atomos Limited ('ASX:AMS', 'Atomos' or the 'Company') is pleased to advise it has settled the US and Australian legal cases between Atomos and the former Chief Executive Officer, Estelle McGeachie (Ms McGeachie).

On 29 August 2022, Atomos announced it had become aware that an employment related claim had been filed against the Company in the United States of America (USA). On 15 September 2022, Atomos announced that it had filed a proceeding against Ms McGeachie in the Supreme Court of Victoria alleging claims for breach of loan agreement relating to her employment at the Company.

Following recent mediation, both parties have agreed to and entered into, a Confidential Settlement Agreement and Mutual Release (Agreement). Under the Agreement, neither party admits liability and provides the other party mutual releases for all claims relating to the matters.

While the Settlement Payment amount remains confidential, the Company advises that the provision recorded in the FY24 Appendix 4E Preliminary Final Report (lodged with ASX on 30 August 2024), is sufficient to meet all payments relating to the Settlement Payment amount and all future legal expenses relating to the matters.

Atomos has access to sufficient capital to meet the settlement obligations as and when they fall due.

Atomos Managing Director and CEO, Jeromy Young said, "This is a very positive outcome and marks another key milestone in our journey to re-build the business. With these matters now resolved, the clean-up of issues negatively affecting Atomos are now coming to a close, we are able to focus our time and resources on releasing new and groundbreaking products to existing and new markets as well as ensuring the company continues on its path to financial strength."

This announcement has been authorised for lodgement with ASX by the Board of Directors.
