Capitol Health Managing Director John Conidi commented:

“We see 3D printing as an emerging technology that will play a fundamental part in patient diagnosis and the treatment pathway. In the near future 3D-printed, patient specific anatomical models will form a critical part of medical best practice protocols. As we have done in the past with the take up of other emerging technology, we wanted to again be at the forefront of this very exciting technology and its application in the healthcare sector.”

3DM expects to be providing 3D printing services to Capitol within weeks, with first revenues anticipated to follow shortly thereafter. The application of the SLA, given Capitol is one of Australia’s leading healthcare companies, has the potential to see 3DM services implemented Australia wide in a short period of time.
