Additional Information Regarding NDC Edge Collaboration with Thales and Microsoft

archTIS Limited (ASX:AR9), a global provider of innovation software solutions for the secure collaboration of sensitive information, announced yesterday that the company has entered a partnership with Thales Australia, Microsoft, and Australian SMEs Myriad Technologies and FortifyEdge to launch Nexium Defence Cloud Edge (NDC Edge) (Refer to ASX Announcement titled "archTIS Partners with Thales and Microsoft to deliver Australian Sovereign Cloud computing to the edge of the battlespace" released on 1 June 2021 (Announcement)).

The Company confirms that the partnership with Thales Australia, Microsoft, and Australian SMEs Myriad Technologies and FortifyEdge to launch NDC Edge is a strategic commercial collaboration that is not governed by a formal binding agreement between the parties, nor is there any contracted revenue or a specified term over which the collaboration will take place.

As is common in the industry, the synergistic products and technologies of the contributing partners have been integrated and packaged into one joint product, being NDC Edge.

Thales Australia has begun marketing the packaged NDC Edge solution to its established global customer network, providing all contributing parties, including archTIS, with the opportunity to derive revenues from customers who sign up to NDC Edge.

This latest product collaboration demonstrates the capability of the archTIS's technology and its flexibility to be bundled into an aggregated commercial solution with global applications.
