White Label Progress with US Telecommunications Partner

Home security provider Scout Security Limited ((ASX: SCT), "Scout" or "the Company") is pleased to provide an update on its white label program launch.

The launch of white labelled products through Scout's telecommunications partner, first announced to the ASX on 11 November 2020, is now imminent. The Company has confirmed receipt of the first batch of hardware in the United States, on schedule, which will form the basis of its Scout-powered and partner-branded security products.

The pending launch by the Company's telecommunications partner is expected to underpin growth in Scout's recurring revenue into the second half of CY21.

The Company will provide full details regarding Scout's white label launch into the US telecommunications market when its partner has officially released details of the jointly developed program to the public.
