RYBERG MOBILISATION UPDATE

The field crew departed for the Ryberg Project by vessel on the 5th of June, and encountered sea ice that slowed progress to the Greenland coastline. A cell of bad weather is forecast to reach the east coast of Greenland tomorrow, therefore for the safety and well-being of the field crew, the vessel has changed its destination to Isafjordur, Iceland. The bad weather is anticipated to assist in the clearing of the sea ice, and the vessel will mobilise for the Ryberg Project, Greenland when conditions are nominal, which is anticipated to be the 14th of June.
