The Company experienced an initial decline in activity when COVID-19 first began to impact businesses across Australia in March 2019, but the extended periods during which Australians were locked down and unable to travel saw an extraordinary increase in securities market activities, both from investors and companies undertaking corporate actions to take advantage of the increased investor engagement.

The Company undertook measures to improve efficiencies and reduce costs during the COVID-19 period which have benefited the Company's results allowing the Company to recognise an increased profit compared to the 2019 result whilst revenues were relatively similar to that year.
