WEST COBAR RECOMMENCES DRILLING AT THE SALAZAR REE PROJECT

Summary

- West Cobar Metals has recommenced its 9,000-meter air core drilling program at the Salazar REE Project in the Esperance region of Western Australia
- 83 air core drill holes for 2,781 meters completed before Christmas break
- First batch of samples have arrived at Bureau Veritas and are being prepared for analysis, with assays expected during Q1 2023

West Cobar Metals Limited (ASX:WC1) (“West Cobar”) is pleased to report that drilling activities have recommenced at the Salazar Clay Rare Earth Element (REE) Project, 125km NE of the town of Esperance in Western Australia (Figure 1).

Prior to the Christmas break, West Cobar completed 2,781m of its 9,000m phase 1 air core program and has recommenced drilling on Monday 9th January 2023 and will continue through to completion in Q1, 2023.

The program is planned to extend the existing Inferred Resource of 43.5Mt at 1192ppm total rare earths oxide (TREO) at Newmont¹, explore the southern part of E63/1496 which contains the Newmont deposit, and to explore the O’Connor licence area (E63/1469).

Drill samples from the program have been sent to Bureau Veritas and are being prepared for analysis. Assay results are expected during Q1 2023. The final assay results will then be integrated with the historical data to produce an updated Inferred Resource for the Newmont deposit during Q2 2023.
