Copper River Technologies Joins the archTIS Channel Partner Program

Partnership to Provide Expanded Distribution and Services to U.S. Government and Enterprise Customers

archTIS (ASX:AR9, OTCQB:ARHLF), a global provider of data-centric solutions for the secure collaboration of sensitive information, today announced that Copper River Technologies, a leading provider of dynamic, comprehensive Information Technology solutions and services, has joined the Channel Partner Program in the United States.

With over 3 million U.S. Defense employees and US$7b in annual cyber security spend, growing at a 13% annual CAGR (compounded annual growth) through 2029, the partnership opens new market licensing distribution opportunities across existing relationships for data-centric security with the U.S. Department of Defense. (Source: Fortune Business Insights – 6 May 24).

The partnership allows Copper River, a Federally Recognized Alaskan Tribal Small Disadvantaged Business owned by the Native Village of Eyak (NVE) specializing in information technology solutions and services for government and enterprises, to resell and provide services for NC Protect in the United States. NC Protect adds attribute-based access and control (ABAC) policies and unique data-centric security capabilities to control the access, usage and sharing of sensitive and classified content across Microsoft 365 apps, SharePoint Server, Windows file shares, NetApp ONTAP and Nutanix Files to meet government and defense industry information security and compliance needs.

Bill Halladay, President of Copper River Technologies, said, “Providing high-performance IT solutions and services through elite-level partnerships with innovative technology manufacturers is foundational to Copper River's mission. By partnering with archTIS, Copper River can now offer customers archTIS' leading data-centric, policy-enforced information security solutions to address the growing requirements from the government, defense and the supply chain to secure critically sensitive and classified information in Microsoft applications.”

Copper River provides dynamic, comprehensive information technology solutions and services to federal, state, and local government, as well as commercial enterprises, service providers, and telecommunication customers. They combine best-in-class technology products with their engineering, design, and professional services expertise to craft a complete, end-to-end technology solution that is unique to their clients' needs.

Kurt Mueffelmann, Global COO and US President of archTIS, said, “I'm pleased to announce our partnership with Copper River to expand their solutions portfolio with NC Protect. With a number of ongoing proof of concepts and opportunities within the US government and defense, their expertise in delivering solutions for the government and defense sectors aligns with archTIS' value proposition of providing data-centric, ABAC-enabled information security products to safeguard sensitive and classified information more effectively. Copper River will also have the opportunity to distribute Kojensi in future sales offerings within the U.S. government and defense enterprises.”
