Dear Shane

Arrow Minerals Limited (ASX: AMD) – Response to Price Query

We refer to ASX's letter dated 24 January 2025 regarding an increase in the price of trading of securities of Arrow Minerals Limited ("Company" or "AMD") ("ASX Letter").

Our responses to each of the questions included in the ASX Letter are below.

1. Is AMD aware of any information concerning it that has not been announced to the market which, if known by some in the market, could explain the recent trading in its securities?

Yes, the only information known to the Company which has not been announced to the market was a potential capital raising by the Company.

However, for the reasons outlined in the response to question 3, the Company does not believe the information relating to the potential capital raising explains the recent increase in the trading price of the Company's shares as at the date of the ASX Letter. Such information would have ordinarily decreased the trading price of the Company's shares.

The Company had commenced engaging with brokers in relation to conducting a potential capital raising for the Company. As at the date of the ASX Letter, the potential capital raising was confidential and incomplete. No decision had been made by the Board to proceed with the capital raising and no determination had been made regarding the structure, price or quantum of any capital raising.

As a consequence of the ASX Letter, the Company subsequently accelerated its plans for the capital raising which was subsequently announced on 29 January 2025 (Announcement).

The Company will rely on the information in the investor presentation released on 16 January 2025 for the capital raising.

2. If the answer to question 1 is “yes”,

- (a) Is AMD relying on Listing Rule 3.1A not to announce that information under Listing Rule 3.1? Please note that the recent trading in AMD's securities would suggest to ASX that such information may have ceased to be confidential and therefore AMD may no longer be able to rely on Listing Rule 3.1A. Accordingly, if the answer to this question is “yes”, you need to contact us immediately to discuss the situation.

The Company was relying on Listing Rule 3.1A not to announce the information in the Announcement before today. At the time of the ASX Letter, the information in the Announcement was confidential and incomplete, and the Company was not in a position to disclose the information and was satisfied that appropriate arrangements were in place to protect the confidentiality of the information.

The Company has no reason to believe that confidentiality of the information in the Announcement ceased to be confidential as there had been no leak of the information (nor had any media releases, press articles or public information been released in the media). The Company has no reason to believe that the information in the Announcement was the reason for the recent increase in the Company's share price, noting the matters in the response to question 3 may provide an possible explanation. The Company would have expected that the information relating to the Company potentially conducting a capital raising would have resulted in the Company's shares price being trading on a "cum placement" basis which would have more likely resulted in a decrease in the Company's share price rather than an increase in the share price. Irrespective of the above, in light of the increase in the Company's share price and promptly following receipt of the ASX Letter, the Company requested a trading halt to ensure a fully informed market.

- (b) Can an announcement be made immediately? Please note, if the answer to this question is "no", you need to contact us immediately to discuss requesting a trading halt (see below).

The Company released the Announcement today.

- (c) If an announcement cannot be made immediately, why not and when is it expected that an announcement will be made?

The Company released the Announcement today.

3. If the answer to question 1 is "no", is there any other explanation that AMD may have for the recent trading in its securities?

Whilst the Company's response to question 1 was "yes", the Company does not consider the information in the Announcement to explain the increase in the Company's share price. The Company considers that further explanations for the recent trading in its securities may be the result of a number of positive developments at the Company and within its industry in the past month, these include the following.

- (a) On 8 January 2025, the Company conducted a significant consolidation of its share capital on a ratio of 20 to 1 which resulted in an increase in the average value of the Company's shares traded on a daily basis.
- (b) The Company has announced a number of drill results over AMD's exploration projects over the last month, including positive, high grade bauxite drilling results extending over a combined area of 14sqkm at the Niagara Bauxite Project in Guinea, West Africa. The Company also reaffirmed the Exploration Target estimate for the Niagara Bauxite Project in an ASX release on 13 January 2025.
- (c) On 16 January 2025, the Company released an investor presentation as part of its strategy of increasing its profile within the market. Subsequently between 20 to 22 January 2025, as part of the Company's usual business development activities, the Company has been on a roadshow presenting the investor presentation to various institutional investors to provide an update on the Company's Niagara Bauxite Project, exploration activities and future plans.

- (d) The bauxite commodity price has strengthened in January 2025 which has resulted in many listed bauxite companies experiencing price increases during this month. For example, a peer company Canyon Resources Limited (ASX: CAY), a Bauxite explorer in Cameroon, has seen its share price increase 35% this month.

4. Please confirm that AMD is complying with the Listing Rules and, in particular, Listing Rule 3.1?

AMD confirms it is in compliance with the Listing Rules and, in particular, Listing Rule 3.1.

5. Please confirm that AMD's responses to the questions above have been authorised and approved under its published continuous disclosure policy or otherwise by its board or an officer of AMD with delegated authority from the board to respond to ASX on disclosure matters.

This response has been authorised and approved by the AMD board.
