DigitalX Appointed Blockchain Advisor

- DigitalX to provide Blockchain consulting services and business development.
- DigitalX to advise on Blockchain applications that could be integrated into the E-Collate platform.
- E-Collate architecture completed and moving towards commercialisation.

Transcendence Technologies Limited (ASX: TTL) ("Transcendence" or the "Company") has appointed DigitalX Limited ("DigitalX") as Blockchain Advisor.

DigitalX will review the company's current product offerings and provide Blockchain consulting services, with a focus on how distributed ledger technology could be integrated into Transcendence's current business model.

"DigitalX is Australia's leading provider of consulting services for Blockchain solutions and we are pleased to be working with them on this project," said Transcendence Chairman Peter Wall.

Transcendence's E-Collate data management and compliance platform is a cloud-based service which enables customers to upload, arrange and manage a range of compliance documentation.

The Company recently announced a collaboration agreement with PrimeX Connect, which is a digital marketplace for wholesale trading and supply chain management for meat products.

The marketplace connects international buyers and sellers so they can negotiate and trade securely and efficiently.

"Blockchain technology could help producers, sellers and consumers follow meat products in transit from paddock to plate, by tracking measurements such as temperature and pressure of the meat products to ensure quality," said Mr Travers.

Transcendence is pleased with the progress made to date in completing the construction of the E-Collate architecture and is now moving towards commercialising its product offering.

The company is also developing partnership opportunities by offering demonstration accounts and a dedicated roll-out communications hotline.

Remuneration of DigitalX primarily success based and payable in script.
