Capstan Prospect Diamond Drilling Underway

HIGHLIGHTS

- Diamond drilling is underway at the Capstan Prospect
- Two 500m holes testing 4.5km long, 750m wide trend of gold anomalism

Prodigy Gold NL ('Prodigy Gold') is pleased to announce that diamond drilling has commenced at the Capstan Prospect within the Company's 100% owned Bluebush Gold Project.

Prodigy Gold Managing Director Matt Briggs said: "There are few, if any, other companies in Australia with a greenfields project of this calibre or scale as we see at Capstan. We have defined gold anomalism across 8km¹ with multiple trends up to 4.5km long and 750m wide². The aircore drilling has exceeded our expectations including anomalous intersections 21m wide², and end of hole results of 4g/t Au³.

The next phase of exploration is now underway. Diamond drilling will assist in understanding the geological architecture of the Capstan Prospect prior to the commencement of RC drilling."

³ ASX Announcement 2 August 2018

Large scale gold anomalism was first recognised at the Capstan Project in aircore drilling during November last year (ASX Announcement 21 November 2017). The Prodigy Gold team has worked aggressively to complete two subsequent phases of infill aircore drilling and define multiple gold trends of up to 4.5km long and 750m wide (ASX Announcement 9 July 2018). The success of the recent aircore programs has given the Company the confidence to bring forward diamond drilling into the largest trend at Capstan. Two diamond drillholes of up to 500m each are planned to be drilled two kilometres apart and will provide high quality structural information to guide future RC drilling. The Company will receive funding from the Northern Territory Government as part of the Resourcing the Territory initiative.
