Highlights

- Drilling commenced at Kroda
- Results expected intermittently over the next 4 to 6 weeks
- Final detailed assay results expected early 2019

Gladiator Resources Ltd (Company) is pleased to advise that United Drilling Services has begun drilling at the Company's North Arunta Project, a joint venture between the Company and Prodigy Gold (ASX: PRX). There was an initial start delay due to inclement weather impeding mobilisation however all track work and drill pad drill work was completed ahead of the drill rigs arrival on Wednesday.

As previously reported, the drilling campaign is expected to run for a period of 4 weeks which will encompass 2,000 metres of RC drilling and 250 metres of diamond drilling over the Kroda prospect. The program aims to test the prominent IP chargeability anomalies identified during the IP Survey conducted in June & July 2018. Secondary aims are to verify grades reported from historic drilling and to obtain crucial geological (particularly structural) information that will enable cost-effective definition of resources.

The long-range weather outlook remains encouraging and no material delay is expected during the campaign.

Results generated by portable XRF are expected to be available throughout the duration of the campaign with final gold assays expected in mid to late January 2019.

Further updates will be provided throughout the campaign.
