日本水産株式会社

SFG's existing prawn farming operations in the State of Queensland produces more than one-third of total domestic production of farmed prawn in Australia, where the required environmental standards create high barriers to entry.

Nissui is introducing the new product Seinaru-Ebi from SFG's farm in the state.

In addition, SFG has started the construction of a large-scale prawn farming project in Northern Territory of Australia from 2018 after Nissui's participation investing in the company.

Project Sea Dragon Pty Ltd (PSD: a 100% subsidiary of SFG) has started the construction of Black Tiger prawn farming site in 2018 and plan to bring the product to the market in 2021. At the first year of harvest PSD targets producing 5,000 tonnes of quality fresh prawns.

Nissui will market the black tiger prawn products from PSD exclusively in Japan, in the Australia and New Zealand markets, on top of potential global distribution through the Nissui Global Links network.

Nissui pursues "Sophistication of Aquaculture Business" as one of the major themes in its Marine Products Business and has already started a feasibility study of on-shore farming of Vannamee shrimp for eating raw in Japan. It now invests in the development of farming businesses in the world consistent with its new mid-term plan "MVIP+2020", starting from 2018.
