Vault Intelligence Partners with Total Brain to Integrate Mental Health and Fitness into Solo, their Workforce Performance and Protection Solution

- Total Brain will initially be bundled with Vault's Solo solution
- Combined offering significantly expands Vault's end-to-end value proposition
- Partnership significantly expands Total Brain's distribution in APAC

Total Brain (ASX: TTB), a mental health and fitness platform powered by neurotechnology announced today a partnership with Vault Intelligence, makers of innovative end-to-end software solutions within an ecosystem designed to drive individual and organisational performance whilst ensuring the protection of those workers.

Under the terms of the deal, Vault will initially bundle Total Brain's platform with its Solo solution, bolstering its ability to lift performance through identifying and managing risk through Total Brain's mental health and fitness assessment and screening functionality. Vault's ecosystem of capabilities to improve human performance will also be expanded through Total Brain's extensive library of brain and mind training exercises.

The parties have also agreed to explore a deeper integration of the Total Brain platform within Vault's offerings, as well as explore incorporation of Total Brain's heart rate variability research.

"Our partnership with Total Brain significantly expands the value proposition of our Solo solution ecosystem, enabling us to improve individual human performance in the workplace and by extension, enhancing engagement and productivity for our customers," said CEO and Managing Director, Vault Intelligence, David Moylan.

"We are very excited to partner with Vault to gain competent distribution in the Asia-Pacific market. Our ability to measure and improve brain capacities also serves as a perfect complement to Vault's offerings, allowing us to offer a truly unique solution to customers," said CEO of Total Brain, Louis Gagnon.
