

Zenith Energy's response to COVID-19 pandemic

- Zenith Energy has enacted prudent mitigation response activities to minimise the impact of the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic
- Staff and stakeholders are engaged and reassured that Zenith Energy will continue to provide power generation solutions in its various remote locations

Remote power generation specialist Zenith Energy Limited (ASX: ZEN) ('Zenith' or 'the Company') has been implementing a range of precautionary measures in response to the potential impact of the novel coronavirus (COVID-19).

These mitigation activities and precautionary measures are in line with federal and state government health authorities' advice and are regularly reviewed and updated. Focus remains on maintaining the health and wellbeing of Zenith personnel, and its clients, contractors and partners.

These activities include social distancing, more frequent and detailed cleaning measures, and ongoing engagement with staff, suppliers, contractors and clients, to ensure the health and safety of all people involved with the Company.

Key practical actions include preparing non-essential staff to work from home with only essential personnel to remain on site or in the corporate office. To enable this, Zenith has enhanced the use of technology and software to support internal and external communication with team members and clients via video conference and other programs or applications.

Zenith Energy's Managing Director, Hamish Moffat commented:

"We are taking a balanced and fact-driven approach to the current COVID-19 pandemic. We have a number of measures in place, some of which are being adopted by the business community. This is to ensure the safety and wellbeing of our people whether they are based in our offices or at the remote work locations where we support clients.

"Zenith Energy continues to deliver innovative, reliable, highly efficient and cost-effective power generation solutions to support the diverse needs of its clients in remote locations. We are currently operating as usual and activities have not been compromised.

"As a result of the measures and mitigation activities we've implemented, we remain positive in our outlook and look forward to working with clients locally and globally on a
