ASX Announcement

27 May 2020

NEWS ARTICLE CLARIFICATION

G Medical Innovations Holdings Ltd (ASX: GMV) (G Medical or the Company) would like to provide clarification in relation to an article published by news website 'Globes' on 26 April 2020, titled "Remote monitoring co G Medical again mulls Nasdaq listing" (Article).

The Article attributes the following statement to the Company's Managing Director, Dr Yacov Geva:

"We are thinking of listing on Nasdaq and delisting in Australia. The US stock exchange is today looking for products in the remote medicine field. We are interested in developing additional tests such as for sugar and cholesterol that can be done from home."

The Company acknowledges that an interview between Dr Yacov Geva and the representative of the above news website took place by phone on 9 April 2020 and, as at that time, the Company was considering whether to delist from the ASX to facilitate and support its proposed application to list on Nasdaq (refer to the ASX announcement dated 23 April 2020 for further details). However, on 12 April 2020, the Company determined not to proceed with its proposed delisting from the ASX.

As at the date of this announcement, the Company advises that it has no plans to delist from the ASX and, should this change, the Company will provide shareholders with further information and the process that will be undertaken by the Company by way of ASX announcement.

The Company would like to take this opportunity to remind shareholders that the Company is unable to ensure the correctness of, or verify, material or information published by third parties and accordingly, shareholders are cautioned not to place reliance on information in respect to the Company obtained from third party sources, including online news platforms, and should refer to the Company's announcements on its ASX platform for information in respect to the Company.
