

Vale Charles Yobone

It is with great sadness that Kingston wishes to advise that Charles Yobone passed away on Thursday 17th of September. Kingston's deepest sympathies are with Charles's extended family at this most difficult time.

Charles was an exceptional individual who was widely respected across all levels of PNG society. Hailing from Enga province originally, Charles graduated from the University of Papua New Guinea with a Bachelor of Science (Geology major) and went on to have a very successful career as a geologist working on a number of nationally significant mining projects. Charles was also a leading member of the Misima Island community. Since 2017, Charles was the Gallipoli Exploration Project Manager for Kingston, and prior to that with WCB Resources Limited for four years. Charles's work reflected his honest character, always acting with the utmost integrity and engaging with others in a positive, understanding manner.

Charles was an integral part of Kingston's success in recent years in advancing the Misima Gold Project. Kingston will continue on with the Misima Gold Project, but Charles will always be a central figure in the legacy of the Project. He will be fondly and well remembered by all at Kingston.
