ASG partners with AWS to deliver solutions worth $10 million

ASG's position as the leading Australian New World solutions integrator has been reinforced with the awarding of recent contracts worth in excess of $10 million utilising Amazon Web Services (AWS) to underpin "as a Service (aaS)" solutions.

With the New South Wales Data Reform Strategy driving State Government Departments to review their strategy, ASG has demonstrated its ability as a leading integrator, providing a full service offering utilising internationally-recognised AWS as an integral part of innovative "aaS" solutions. This ability has been recognised by AWS with the awarding of multiple accreditations, including the AWS Advanced Consulting Partner and AWS Government Partner Program status.

The recently awarded contract with the Department of Trade, Investment, Regional Infrastructure and Services (DITRIS) builds on ASG's existing NSW Government client base of organisations such as Biosecurity NSW and Department of Transport in utilising AWS as part of a cost effective, scalable solution that is tailored to derive business outcomes. The DITRIS contract will see ASG deliver the first major deployment of Unitrends' Boomerang - an Australian-developed technology that automates the "bridging" of workloads across VMware and AWS.

"Our partnership with AWS and Unitrends/Boomerang helps to further expand our foothold in transitioning Government Department's to New World solutions," said Geoff Lewis, ASG CEO. "Increasingly AWS and the public sector are now turning to ASG instead of the large multi-national organisations, with their intransigent business models, to leverage our expertise in implementing and managing innovative cloud solutions."
