The Directors of Reclaim Industries Limited ("RCM") are pleased to announce that Rision Pty Ltd (Rision) has entered into a Memorandum of Understanding with the American Sustainable Business Council (ASBC), to promote Rision's employment management system.

The American Sustainable Business Council is a US-based national advocacy and policy organization working to advance a sustainable economy, with a membership comprising more than 200,000 businesses and 350,000 individual entrepreneurs, owners, executives and investors in diverse industries across the United States.

The ASBC has agreed to introduce Rision to selected members who are likely to wish to partner with Rision and make the platform available to a broader set of businesses across the country.

Additionally, ASBC will introduce Rision to key officials in the U.S. Department of Labor, the White House as well as members of various House and Senate Committees.

Co-Founder and CEO of ASBC, Mr David Levine said: "We believe that members of the [US] Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee will find the [Rision] platform of great interest."

ASBC's goal is to unify businesses and business organizations to create systemic change and a sustainable economy by shifting markets and policies is well aligned with Rision's mission to empower employees and promote good business practises.
