ASG's positive delivery experience sees the signing of a new Federal Government contract

ASG (ASX:ASZ) continue to consolidate their Federal Government footprint, signing a new contract with the Department of Infrastructure and Regional Development for up to $23.8 million. The five year deal, with further options for up to three years, will see ASG delivering Infrastructure Services, Desktop Services and end-to-end Service Management across the Department's ICT environment.

ASG have been providing Managed Services to the Department for over 7 years. "ASG's track record delivering high-quality Managed Services, together with our innovative new world solutions continues to demonstrate and deliver real benefits and value for money for our Federal Government customers," said Geoff Lewis, ASG CEO.

"This contract also solidifies our position as a premier provider of Desktop and Infrastructure Services for the Federal Government," said Mr Lewis.

This re-sign of an existing client is a further example of the unique strength of ASG's New World managed service business model, contributing to ASG's locked-in, annuity revenue base for a further 5+ years.
