Aspermont appoints Editor of Mining Journal and Mining-Journal.com

Aspermont Limited (ASX: ASP) is pleased to announce the appointment of Chris Cann as Editor of Mining Journal, the global mining investment and business weekly now in its 180th year, as well as mining-journal.com. Chris is an experienced and widely respected mining journalist who is well qualified to advance the Mining Journal values of high quality and objective reporting on the global mining industry.

Chris completed a Bachelor of Science degree and a Post Graduate Diploma in Journalism in Australia and subsequently a BSc (First Class) with the University of London. He initially worked with Paydirt Media (Paydirt, Gold Mining Journal) and Aspermont (Resource Stocks, MiningNews.net), moving to the UK in 2007 as a freelance resources journalist, principally as European editor for HighGrade.net, an online title that became part of Mining Journal in 2013. Chris has also been a key contributor to Mining Journal.

Chris will maintain the Mining Journal tradition for objective reporting on mining investment, finance and business news, supplemented with analysis and features on new trends or developments in the mining and energy sectors. He will work closely with Richard Roberts, who has been promoted from Mining Journal editor to a newly created position as Aspermont Group Managing Editor, responsible for all Aspermont Group resource publications

Alex Kent -Group MD- said "The appointment of Chris Cann and the promotion of Richard Roberts greatly strengthen our editorial team. These appointments confirm our commitment to provide customers with industry leading content whilst our continued investment in new technologies and products, further builds our leading position in resources media"
