Andras Kristof Joins Yojee as Chief Technology Officer

- Andras Kristof comes with 20 years of experience in the IT and web based platform space including leading the technology team at Viki, Singapore's largest ever tech exit.
- Highly respected in Asia as a technology thought leader in block-chain technology, the flow of assets between parties through a highly secure and frictionless digital network.
- Experience in digital transitions from legacy and paper based operating models.

Yojee Pty Ltd ("Yojee") and Southern Crown Resources Limited ("Southern Crown") are pleased to announce that leading technologist Andras Kristof will join the Yojee Team as Chief Technology Officer.

Andras Kristof is an entrepreneur with more than 20 years of IT experience. He has previously worked in the United States, Japan and Singapore, for start-ups and large multi-national corporations.

After selling a range of self-built software as a child, Mr Kristof moved into building an expert system for the medical sector and architectural software for a university. He subsequently led the analog-digital transformation of the USA's second largest event photography company.

In Japan, Mr Kristof developed an e-commerce platform for a car exporter, which Included shipping and inventory management. Following his time in Japan and New Zealand, Mr Kristof moved to Singapore, and joined Yahoo Southeast Asia where he was tasked with overhauling the regional infrastructure, and also ran successful projects in Indonesia and Vietnam.

As the Vice President of engineering at Viki.com - Singapore's most successful start-up exit to date, Mr Kristof built the team and technology from its very early and pre-commercialization days. Viki.com was acquired by Japanese e-commerce giant Rakuten. Mr Kristof currently serves as an advisor to the Jetcoin Institute and Fairhaven Financial Technologies.

Yojee and Southern Crown are pleased to attract someone with the experience of Mr Kristof and believe his knowledge and track record as a successful entrepreneur will support the vision of building large, efficient, scalable logistics systems.
