Sedgman awarded $59.8m EPC contract for Alcoa Kwinana Filtration Plant

Leading resource sector services company Sedgman Limited (ASX:SDM) today announced it had been awarded a $59.8 million EPC contract as Main Integrating Contractor for the Filtration Plant at Alcoa of Australia Limited's (Alcoa) Kwinana alumina refinery in Western Australia.

When complete the Filtration Plant will produce lower moisture content bauxite residue from the refinery. This will permit ongoing residue storage within the existing storage area, deferring the need to construct new drying areas.

Sedgman's scope of work includes design, procurement, delivery, construction, integration and commissioning of the Filtration Plant and the associated process infrastructure.

Sedgman Chief Executive Officer and Managing Director Peter Watson said it was exciting to be working with a blue chip client like Alcoa following a competitive tender and front end engineering design (FEED) process.

"We have been working closely with Alcoa over the last few months to understand and refine the design and delivery model to meet the requirements of this project.

"Sedgman has extensive experience with the filtration process being used at Kwinana gained from our 35 year history of designing, building and operating minerals processing plants across the coal and metalliferous sectors.

"We continue to look for opportunities within the global minerals sectors where we can leverage our EPC delivery model and multi commodity minerals processing experience to deliver value for our new and existing clients."

Detailed design has commenced on the project with completion scheduled for April 2016.
