Principal Activities

The principal activity of the consolidated entity during the half year was the further development and commercialisation of novel technology for the manufacture of epitaxially grown gallium nitride at low temperature. BluGlass is also engaged in research activities in developing other high efficiency nitride devices.

All research and development activites are conducted in BluGlass Limited. There were no other significant changes in the nature of the consolidated entity's principal activities during the half year.

Operating Results

Revenue has increased by $37,058 up 1.9% to $2,008,896 due to the following factors:

- Accrual of $1,000,000 for the Research and Development Tax Rebate, applicable for the six month period.
 Accrued on the same basis as the prior year
- Receipt of the operational foundry revenue $194,300, up 217% from prior year.
- Receipt of $833,895 from the Commonwealth Clean Technology Grant. Up 40% on last year.

Gross expenditure has decreased by $46,818, down 1.3% due to the following factors:

- Employee benefits expense down 4.9% to $1,390,122 (2013: $1,461,387), and no staff bonus was paid during the period.
- Depreciation expense is increasing due to amortisation of the new facilities fit out completed during the prior year, $388,796 (2013: $250,673).

The consolidated loss for the period amounted to $1,551,130 down 5.1% (2013: $1,635,006)

The company's has net assets of $13,549,793, (30 June 2014: $14,799,655)

The Statement of Financial Position does not include a value for the increasing number of patents granted during the period since listing on the ASX in 2006 as all research and development costs are expensed as incurred and not capitalised.

Dividends Paid or Recommended

No dividends were paid or declared during the period.

REVIEW OF OPERATIONS

POST AGM ACTIVITY & PROGRESS

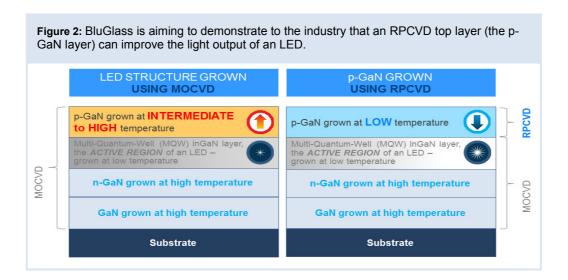

Since the AGM, BluGlass has made significant improvements in the blue LED efficiency using RPCVD p-GaN and has commenced work on green LEDs with promising first results (see Figure 1).

The most recent measurements (see Table 1) have shown that blue LEDs grown by incorporating BluGlass' low temperature RPCVD p-GaN on top of

This jump in improvement was achieved on both of the RPCVD systems, with the single best result occurring on the newly commissioned BLG-300 system. This demonstrates that the RPCVD technology can be successfully transferred from one vendor platform and operating system (Veeco) to another (Aixtron). This will help provide confidence in the scalability and commercialisation potential of the technology.

Table 1. RPCVD results from wafer level LED Quick Test setup at BluGlass using indium contacts	Measured at 20mA	Measured at 50mA
Light Output (mW)	1.9	4.3
Vf (V)	4.4	5.8
Peak Wavelegnth (nm)	462	461
Full Width Half Maximum (nm)	21	23

As discussed at the AGM, additional effort has been placed on exploring other RPCVD opportunities, in particular GaN on silicon and aluminium nitride (AIN) templates. The BLG-300, the larger of the two RPCVD systems, has been used to explore AIN deposition, which is a key material in applications that use GaN on silicon such as in power electronics. Initial efforts have shown promise and have demonstrated the benefit of having two RPCVD systems working on multiple aspects of the nitride technology and their applications.

Following our July 2014 announcement (improvement in efficiency of RPCVD p-GaN), a number of the industry's leading chip and equipment manufacturers contacted BluGlass to discuss the RPCVD technology and our current progress. As a result of this, the CTO and MD met with some of these companies in Asia and the US. These discussions were very productive and reaffirmed the Company's roadmaps and value proposition.

BluGlass has taken a gold sponsorship of the upcoming Compound Semiconductor (CS) International Conference in Frankfurt, Germany (March 11-12). This activity has been supported (and partially funded) by the NSW Government. BluGlass will have a stand at the two day conference to showcase to the industry the recent progress on the development of the RPCVD platform and will also be marketing the growing custom epitaxy (foundry) business alongside our agent, xVI Technologies. This is a positive step forward for the company to be holding its first trade stand and beginning the process of marketing the RPCVD technology. More information can be found at: http://www.cs-international.net/sponsors.

The BluGlass Chief Technology Officer, Dr. Ian Mann has also been invited to speak at the Semicon China conference in Shanghai in March 17-19 and will be delivering a talk to the semiconductor community on the benefits of low temperature RPCVD. This is a fantastic opportunity to discuss the progress that the BluGlass technology team is making towards commercialising RPCVD.

Since the AGM in November, a further two patents have been allowed, bringing the total BluGlass granted patent portfolio to 33 international patents in key semiconductor markets.

THE HALF YEAR AHEAD

With the company now having multiple deposition systems in place, the technology team were recently able to increase the activity on some of the other roadmaps, namely the GaN on silicon and InGaN programmes. There are many potential advantages of the low temperature RPCVD in these markets.

The market opportunities for low temperature RPCVD continues to grow and expand as demonstrated by our recent discussions with the industry, and as highlighted at the recent 2014 AGM. These market opportunities include the High Brightness LED, power electronics and solar industries where BluGlass has been focusing most of its technical effort. Additionally there are a number of emerging markets where a low temperature technology could become a critical enabler for market growth, for applications such as UV LEDs, green and yellow LEDs, and laser diodes.

Low temperature p-GaN grown by RPCVD may assist across several of these applications, RPCVD can also potentially enable high quality aluminium rich AlGaN which is also a challenge with standard MOCVD today. Improved AlGaN quality would be beneficial in power electronics and LEDs. Low temperature RPCVD also has the potential to reduce the bowing and cracking of GaN films when grown on large silicon wafers and could be used simplify the process of that used by MOCVD to date.

The focus for the coming half year for the Company will be to progress the technology roadmaps and increasingly place more emphasis on the commercialisation and marketing efforts. We look forward to a productive remaining half year and keeping our shareholders updated on the progress that we make. We thank our shareholders for their continued support as we prepare your company for industry acceptance and commercialisation.
