Sedgman extends Agnew operations contract with Gold Fields

Leading resources sector services company Sedgman Limited (ASX:SDM) today announced the renewal of its crushing and screening operations contract for a further three years at Gold Fields' Agnew Gold Mine. The contract renewal extends the effective operating term until September 2017 with expected total revenue of $23 million over the term of the contract.

Chief Executive Officer and Managing Director Peter Watson said Sedgman was excited to continue working with Gold Fields, a relationship that first commenced in 1997.

"The successful renewal of our operations contract with Gold Fields in a highly competitive market is very pleasing.

"Sedgman has been delivering crushing and screening services at Agnew for over 18 years. This is testament to the strong relationships we seek to build with clients and is a great demonstration of how we have been able to deliver ongoing value to Gold Fields during that time.

"We are seeing an increasing number of operations and operations consulting opportunities emerge as clients look for ways to further optimise their operations and increase the Value in Use of their existing assets."

The crushing and screening facility is scheduled to crush approximately 1.2Mt/a of ore from the Agnew underground mines, located near Leinster in Western Australia.
