Cabcharge appoints new Executive General Manager People and Culture

Cabcharge is pleased to announce that Ben Wicks has commenced as Executive General Manager People and Culture effective today.

Ben is an accomplished HR and business professional with a strong record of improving businesses through cultural change. In particular he has been recently recognised for delivering substantial operational improvements at Asciano's Port Botany stevedoring operations.

Ben grew up in Adelaide and holds Bachelors in Law and Economics. During his 20 year career, Ben has held senior HR and operational positions with Rio Tinto, P&O Ports and Asciano Group.

Ben Wicks said "I'm excited to be joining Cabcharge during a time of change and opportunity. An impressive leadership team has been established and I look forward to working with the team to deliver the right culture for the business."

Ben brings to Cabcharge a well-developed experience set in shifting organisational performance across a number of industries including mining, port operations, local government, health and safety, customer services and delivering significant people and culture transformations linked to business strategy.
