Commentary

Since its Initial Public Offering (IPO) and the commencement of ASX trading on 23 February 2016, Vectus Biosystems Limited (ASX:VBS, Vectus or the Company) has strongly progressed its scientific programme, meeting or exceeding its internal milestones, across its lead candidate, drug library and Accugen Pty Limited (Accugen).

The global market for anti-fibrotic drugs is rapidly maturing and, to-date, Vectus is singular in positioning its drug library not only to slow disease progression, but indeed, to reverse existing organ damage. Further, Vectus has drug candidates that are orally administered and have demonstrated highly-desirable dosage response curves together with outstanding pre-clinical preliminary toxicological results. The Company's lead candidate VB0004 has demonstrated excellent capacity in manufacturability and scale-up yield, which now affords a clear path for the final two animal species toxicological studies and human trials. In parallel, Vectus is bringing forward the development of two of its potential orphan disease candidates with the aim of elevating these compounds to near-term lead status.

A more detailed operational review will be set out in the Company's upcoming Annual Report.

About Vectus Biosystems Limited

Vectus is developing a treatment for fibrosis and high blood pressure, which includes the treatment for three of the largest diseases in the fibrotic market, namely heart, kidney and liver disease. Vectus successfully completed its IPO on the ASX and commenced trading on the ASX on 23 February 2016, after raising A$5.1 million. Funds from the IPO are being used to develop the Company's lead compound VB0004, which aims to treat the hardening of functional tissue and high blood pressure. Vectus has conducted a range of successful pre-clinical trials, which have shown that VB0004 slows down the advances of fibrosis, potentially repairs damaged cell tissue and reduces high blood pressure. VB0004 is now progressing towards a number of important milestones, including pharmaceutical scale-up and additional toxicity studies. Successful results will provide the Company with a clear path to Human Phase 1 and 2a Clinical Trials. Vectus' strategy is to develop and perform early validation of its drug candidates to the point where they may become commercially attractive to potential pharmaceutical partners.

The Company has also developed technology aimed at improving the speed and accuracy of measuring the amount of DNA and RNA in samples tested in laboratories. The technology, called Accugen, is owned by Vectus' wholly-owned subsidiary Accugen Pty Limited. The technology potentially offers a time, cost and accuracy benefit compared to currently-available systems. The Company's next stage of investment in Accugen will focus on an Alpha-phase test programme during 2016 before moving to a commercialisation programme that may include direct sales, distribution partnerships and licencing opportunities.
