ROB CARR PTY LTD CHIEF EXECUTIVE STEPS DOWN

Seymour Whyte Limited (ASX: SWL) advises that Rob Carr has tendered his resignation as Chief Executive of its utilities business Rob Carr Pty Ltd (RCPL) after 27 years as the founding director of RCPL.

Mr Carr will continue to serve on the Board and assist in the progressive and seamless transition of RCPL leadership between now and December 2016.

"Rob Carr Pty Ltd is a great company and I have thoroughly enjoyed the challenge of building it up to its current position as the market leader in conventional and trenchless pipeline infrastructure construction," said Mr Carr.

"With the notable progress and recent growth of the business, I decided that this was an opportune time to pass the torch to my outstanding leadership team."

RCPL's long-serving General Manager Angelo Soumboulidis, who has been with the company since 2003, will take the reins of the business.

Seymour Whyte Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer, Mr John Kirkwood said, "Rob's experience, reputation and market insights have established RCPL as an expert in micro-tunnelling, underground pipe construction, deep shaft and service installations."

"He has developed a strong team at RCPL who will continue to deliver on our strategy to grow the business through offering specialist services that supplement Seymour Whyte's core civil engineering business."

"On behalf of the Board and the Company, I thank Rob for his valuable contributions and I look forward to continuing to work with him in his new role as Non-Executive Director."

Mr Carr who is currently an Executive Director of Seymour Whyte Limited will remain on the Board as a Non-Executive Director after he ceases employment in December 2016.
