Senetas Wins Victorian Government eServices Panel Appointment

Senetas Corporation Limited (ASX:SEN) announced today that it has won appointment to additional specialist service categories on the Whole of Victorian Government eServices Panel, which will enable the company to bid for a much broader range of government services contracts.

Over the past three years Senetas has provided consulting services in security and business intelligence applications to a number of Victorian government departments including, Human Services, Health, Justice, Education and Innovation and Regional Development.

Over the past three years Senetas has provided consulting services in security and business intelligence to a number of Victorian government departments including, Human Services, Health, Justice, Education and Innovation and Regional Development.

Senetas CEO, John DuBois said it was a significant win for the consulting arm of the company and would positively impact consulting revenues next year.

Senetas General Manager - Consulting, Larry Wilson said the appointment was a recognition of the quality of our services and consultants, who enjoy some of the highest utilisation rates in the industry.

“From July 1, we are able to bid for an extra 13 categories of IT services in addition to the work we’re already doing for Victoria,” Mr. Wilson said. The range of additional specialist services include strategy development, business analysis and testing, relating to security; information architecture of general IT, desktop and databases; design and development for groupware; integration and implementation of web/multimedia, data migration and conversion; plus maintenance and support across .NET, Groupware, web/multimedia and database applications.
