Dear Sir/Madam

Launch into Gaming Industry

The Directors of TZ Limited (the “Company”) are pleased to advise that its wholly owned subsidiary, Telezygology, Inc. (“TZI”), has entered into formal negotiations to finalize a Heads of Agreement with Gaming Support BV (“Gaming Support”) that will support the commercialization of the Company’s technology into the gaming industry. There are estimated to be over 7,500 casinos and many more times that number of slot parlors globally (also known as arcades).

Gaming Support is a pre-eminent supplier of products and services to the international gaming and amusement industries. Based in The Netherlands and supplying operators and gaming manufacturers located throughout Africa, Australia, Europe and The Americas, Gaming Support is uniquely positioned to assist TZ with the technological development, marketing and sale of its products within the gaming vertical.

“Gaming Support is a company renowned for its innovative approaches to enhancing client profitability,” stated Lucien van Linden, CEO of Gaming Support. “From stand-alone boutique casinos to blue chip gaming enterprises and slot machine manufacturers, the company’s enviable client roster was earned through a laser-sharp focus on cutting operational costs and enhancing gaming revenues.”

“Within gaming environments, locks often number in the thousands and their management is a highly complex and costly endeavor,” continued van Linden.

“From slot machines and their components to table chip trays and shufflers, virtually every piece of gaming equipment resides under lock and key. By extending TZ’s innovative product portfolio to cover a wide range of gaming-specific applications, we’re highly confident that we can tighten and streamline these environments dramatically and, in the process, deliver enormous benefits to our clientele.”

Under the proposed collaborative agreement, which is still subject to negotiation, Gaming Support will invest in the development of a multi-application demonstration display for the gaming industry based on application insights that will ensure that the technology delivers strong and compelling propositions to all casino operators. The display will be showcased to the world gaming industry at the International Casino Expo in London in January 2011.

“We are very pleased to be forging this relationship with Gaming Support and see them as an ideal partner to introduce new innovation to the gaming industry. Their current product offers clearly demonstrate that they are at the forefront of the industry and substantially ahead of the technology curve. We look forward to working with Gaming Support and to taking our first steps towards commercializing a new offering to the gaming industry based on our smart device technology platform.” said Maarten van Duijn, Vice President of TZ’s operating business, Infrastructure Protection, Inc.

“Given the size of the addressable gaming market, we will be actively evaluating the potential of the opportunity and to whether we should launch this initiative as a new stand-alone business unit for TZI with a suite of customized hardware and software solutions that can be adapted from our existing technology platform.” concluded John Wilson, CEO of Telezygology, Inc.
