

VMOTO TO SUPPLY TRIAL ELECTRIC SCOOTERS TO DOMINO'S PIZZA

ANNOUNCEMENT

5 OCTOBER 2011

Vmoto Limited (“Vmoto” or “the Company”) is pleased to advise that the Domino’s Pizza Enterprises (“Domino’s”) has purchased a small quantity of electric delivery scooters for trial in the Domino’s delivery fleet.

Domino’s has been evaluating the Company’s electric scooters for nearly six months and has now ordered 7 scooters to start field trials, after which, if successful, Domino’s plans to phase out its current petrol delivery vehicles with the aim of having its whole delivery fleet electric in the near future.

Domino’s is Australia’s largest pizza delivery company and currently has 554 stores in Australia and New Zealand and has indicated it will require up to 3000 electric delivery scooters by 2014. It is the first Australian pizza company to take such an initiative in relation to trying to minimise emissions, while at the same time providing the reliable delivery service they have become renowned for.

The proposed arrangement with Domino’s will be the first “Business to Business” sale of the Company’s electric delivery scooter in Australia and represents an encouraging step forward for the Company in its country of origin.

The arrangement was facilitated by Mr Raymond Rooney, the exclusive distributor for Vmoto products within Australia. Mr Rooney commented: “It has been a pleasure working on this project with Domino’s and they have really shown they want to be a front runner in reducing emissions. I look forward to a long and lasting business relationship.”

Mr Andrew Rennie, Domino’s Chief Operations Officer, said: “Domino’s is committed to sustainability initiatives aimed at reducing our carbon footprint. The trial of Vmoto electric scooters is a significant step forward for Domino’s given delivery is a huge part of our business.”

Vmoto is very excited with this new potential supply agreement and looks forward to working closely with Dominos in the next few months to ensure its trial of the scooters is a success. Vmoto see this as an Australian, and possibly world, first for large scale pizza delivery. It is hoped other delivery companies within Australia and the world will follow the Dominos lead.
