

ASX ANNOUNCEMENT – KONEKT LIMITED

Macmahon selects Konekt to improve workforce selection

26 October 2012

Konekt Limited (ASX: KKT) announces that it has executed a contract with Macmahon Holdings Ltd (ASX: MAH) to provide preventative health assessments for a two year term.

Macmahon are a leading contract mining and construction company with operations throughout Australia and a number of other countries. Macmahon employ more than 4,500 people and provide the full range of underground and surface mining services, as well as construction capabilities spanning roads and bridges, rail, marine, water and resource infrastructure.

Under the contract, Konekt will provide outsourced pre-employment services to assist Macmahon in the challenging task of identifying potential health risks for candidates.

Konekt has been selected as one of two suppliers. Prior to the contract Konekt supplied occasional services as one of greater number of suppliers.

“We are delighted that Macmahon have chosen Konekt to minimise the risk of workforce injury and claims cost. By taking the proactive step of assessing potential injury risk with employment candidates, Macmahon are able to make fully informed employment decisions. We look forward to further developing the relationship with Macmahon who will now be one of Konekt’s largest pre-employment service customers,” said Damian Banks, Chief Executive Officer, Konekt.

Macmahon joins a group of large national companies and government bodies, such as National Australia Bank, Telstra as well as previously announced Medibank Health Solutions and the Australian Defence Force currently benefiting from safer workplaces and significant cost containment by partnering with Konekt.
