After record appointments in Australia, Emerald plans international expansion and proposes name change

Highlights

- Month-on-month growth continues with a record 795 appointments in July, despite COVID-19
- Recently announced data deals demonstrate desirability of Emerald's unique Real-World Evidence (RWE) and care model in Australia, the UK and elsewhere
- To support Emerald's global approach to RWE and expanded offerings in remote chronic disease management, digital health technology development and COVID health screening, Emerald proposes name change to Emyria Limited

Emerald Clinics Limited (ASX: EMD) (Emerald or the Company), a Real-World Evidence (RWE) and clinical services company intends to change its name to Emyria Limited, as part of a rebranding consistent with its global ambitions and expanded offerings. The ASX code of EMD will remain unchanged. A notice of a general meeting to approve the name change will be sent to shareholders shortly.

July saw record appointments for the Company's clinical services in Australia, while provision of the majority of health services have trended downwards, due to the COVID-19 pandemic. In response, Emerald is actively hiring clinicians to meet growing demand for its clinical services, expanding its remote monitoring capabilities and increasing its data insight platforms.

The planned name change follows the announcement on 10 August 2020 of its data collaboration with a UK partner, demonstrating the global desirability of the Company's Real-World Evidence asset and the unique care model that supports it.

"The recently announced data deal is the first step towards bringing our evidence-generating care model to international markets and we expect to build off that quickly in several geographies and across different health monitoring applications, where our Real-World Evidence asset can be utilised." said Emerald Clinics CEO Dr Michael Winlo.

"Emerald Clinics has developed a trusted brand within Australia that resonates with clinicians and patients, but as our business has evolved and as we increase engagements overseas, it has become clear that a rebrand was the best way forward to help communicate the breadth of what we do and our global aspirations."

"Emyria speaks to our mission to use a myriad of data to provide individualised care beyond the physical confines of a clinic. In this next normal, leveraging remote data capture and real-time health monitoring to improve care and deliver insights that support new treatment development will become even more critical."
