Northern Hemisphere University Programs enrolments announced

Global education services provider Navitas Limited (ASX: NVT) has today announced a 12 per cent increase in student enrolments for the first semester of 2016 (201601) for its northern hemisphere University Programs colleges. This increase, compared to the prior corresponding period (pcp), represents 7,032 equivalent full time student units (EFTSU).

The northern hemisphere region includes all institutions in the UK, US and Canada. It is expected that student numbers for the southern hemisphere colleges, and the full University Programs Division, will be released in late March.

As previously announced, enrolments across North America colleges (US and Canada) grew by 18% in semester one 2016 compared to pcp.

All of the Division's US colleges continued to grow strongly while delivering high quality academic outcomes to students and partners. The newest partnership in the region, Florida Atlantic University, has been the standout, quickly gaining scale and increasing diversity of the campus community.

Canadian enrolments also continued to grow well from a diverse range of source countries. Canada continues to be a very attractive study destination due in large part to its stable and welcoming regulatory environment.

Enrolments in the UK network of colleges grew by 3 per cent in a demanding student visa policy setting.

"Despite being restrictive, the regulatory environment in the UK seems to have stabilised for now and this should provide some surety for international students seeking to study in the world's 2nd most popular education destination," said Rod Jones, Group CEO of Navitas.

"The US and Canada both remain very popular study destinations and we will continue to work with our partners to explore more ways to offer international students a range of high quality educational options," Mr Jones said.
